Replacing Teeth

Dental Implants

A dental implant is usually manufactured from clinically pure titanium which is threaded into the jawbone. Bridges, individual crowns and loose dentures can be supported by dental implants.

from

£3,200.00

Dental implants are a perfect long lasting option for replacing missing teeth and are a really popular alternative to wearing dentures.

Sedation

Sedation in dentistry is either in the form of a tablet, which can be taken a few hours before a procedure or by administering medicine into a vein in your arm allowing you to feel relaxed and calm whilst having treatment done.

£100.00

(30 mins)

The definition of conscious sedation is that you will be able to remain verbal contact at all times with a wide margin of safety in the choice of drugs and techniques used, allowing treatment ranging from a gum treatment through to advanced dentistry needing to be carried out.

One of the main benefits of using sedation in dentistry is that it allows and amnesic effect. This means that it will eradicate and memory regarding your visit and put you in a sleep like state.

It is at times called 'sleep dentistry' and the closest thing we have to general anaesthetic, because most people fall asleep whilst being sedated but you are really conscious as you are capable to respond to verbal commands, feeling really relaxed and comfortable.
